The study conducted by the social network found that nearly half of the users who have studied the conditions of the crypto-industry believe that the future of cryptocurrencies lies in the hands of mainstream businesses and governmental institutions. The crypto-industry, according to the study, has a great potential, but it requires more partnerships with businesses and governments. The Facebook study "Crypto attitudes and adoption of cryptocurrency" is the result of an experiment in which a fictional crypto-equity fund called "Chatter" that would allow Facebook users to buy and sell bitcoins. The experiment included over 23,000 Facebook users in 15 different countries. The users who took part in the experiment have stated that, on average, they are open to using crypto-tokens as a replacement for existing methods of payment and transactions. According to the research results, crypto-related attitudes have a great impact on consumer demand. The study highlighted the fact that one of the most pressing social issues at present is the lack of trust in the crypto-community. The study also found that the vast majority of crypto-users are aware of the risks associated with the crypto-market, but they tend to have trust in the technology itself. The Facebook study notes that b7e8fdf5c8
