To the Edge of the Universe: the Vatican Observatory Welcomes Pope Francis

Pope Fr. Jan' Fausto' Spemann's interview with Mr. Fausto Spemann of the Vatican Radio after the Pope's visit on July 14, 2013.

"We announce with joy that Pope Francis has had lunch with the Jesuit community of the Vatican Observatory. We are deeply moved!" This was the first of a series of messages printed on Totipot on Sunday by Jesuit missionaries of Castel Gandolfo - first in Italian and then in English, Spanish and French. The Vatican Observatory has its headquarters in the Pontifical Villas of Castel Gandolfo, while the Pontifical Palace, directly above the apartment of the Pope, continues to host the domain with telescopes.

Fr. Fausto: It was a very beautiful day for us Jesuits who work at the Vatican Observatory. It was truly very beautiful, and we are very happy! It was a very beautiful moment, because during lunch we were able to talk about the activities and projects of the Observatory, and then about what we do, about our mission.

Mr. Spemann: Father Fausto, Pope Francis at the Vatican Observatory was also a Jesuit among Jesuits?

Fr. Fausto: Exactly. He was one of our brothers. So it was a double joy to have the Pope with us, the Jesuit Pope. Then, it was the first time that a Pope had lunch with the Jesuit community of the Observatory; this too was something extraordinary.

Mr. Spemann: Of the words Pope Francis has said up till now, what readings have struck the most for you work?

Fr. Fausto: I think it is that which the Pope has insisted on from the beginning: go to the boundaries, and not only geographical, but also ministerial [boundaries]. Our mission is part of this going to the farthest boundaries - if I can say it like that - because it has to do with the universe: we go back, in the sense that we also explore the beginning of the universe from the point of view of science, but we also go far away, because we also study the farthest, the most distant galaxies ... And this brings up the questions that we all should ask about the relationship between science and faith. I think this is the mission of the Observatory: go out to the truly most distant boundaries, the boundaries of the universe that is always a gift of God.
